MetroQuality: The meeting point between the needs of designers and companies

MetroQuality opened his headquarter on April 8th, 2014 in Milan and inaugurated a new space dedicated to several Italian companies.

Our commitment is not only to give a complete answers to the needs of any type of project, but especially to link designers and customers with our companies, to provide services and a range of products updated with the latest innovations.

The main idea is simple and essential: to offer to designers and companies, not only an office, not only a showroom, and a conference room, but even also a real "laboratory" of ideas and skills.

A place where professional designers will meet the creative and productive capacity of a selected group of Italian companies using different material and inspiration.

MetroQuality provides a careful and efficient organization to satisfy all kinds of clients, large and small, specialized and general, national and international.

It directs all activities of the processing cycle, from prototyping to offer elaboration, from assistance on the construction site to supplying custom-designed services and products.

What are the shared values of the MetroQuality companies?

First of all the passion to work closely with the designer and customer. That means ability to transform any material or idea in the product or service through the technical departments of companies able to assist designers and customers in the choice of the right product during the project configuration.
